

VESSEL GALLERY

LONDON

Gunnel Sahlin (Sweden 1954 -)

Dracocephalum White

'Dracocephalum White' is a unique glass sculptural vessel by the Swedish artist, Gunnel Sahlin.

Sahlin's current passions include exploring the limits of glass materiality, colour, form and light taking her inspiration from the natural world around her. Sahlin was born in Umeå, northern Sweden, and studied at Stockholm's University College of Arts, Crafts & Design. She has over 20 years experience in the Swedish glass industry and has exhibited in New York, Norway and Tokyo.

She has held a professorship at Stockholm's College of Art, Craft and Design, as well as the renowned Pilchuck Glass School in the US. Between 1986-2005, she was designer at Kosta Boda, Sweden's most prestigious brand of glassware and glass art.

Artist description:

Sahlin's current passions include exploring the limits of glass materiality, colour, form and light taking her inspiration from the natural world around her. Sahlin was born in Umeå, northern Sweden, and studied at Stockholm's University College of Arts, Crafts & Design. She has over 20 years experience in the Swedish glass industry.

She has held a professorship at Stockholm's College of Art, Craft and Design, as well as the renowned Pilchuck Glass School in the US. Between 1986-2005, she was designer at Kosta Boda, Sweden's most prestigious brand of glassware and glass art.

Sahlin has exhibited extensively in Europe, Japan & the US and received many awards including ; Working Grant Swedish Art Council (2005), Excellent Swedish Design (1991, 1993, 1996, 1997), St. Johns Masonic Lodge Award (1993), and a Working Grant, Eklund Scholarship Fund (1984).